I travel the 48 states and I get into remote areas where only the XM can be picked up. I need the traffic and weather reports because they are more accurate to the location I am in. I can't be switching channels to find a local station and get this information. I need to concentrate on driving my 18-wheeler. It would be such an aggravation to find local channels and frakely, I just would not do it. If these stations think we would be forced to listen to their channels, they have another thing coming. I would merely phone and find out. I love my XM and everything I get on it and the reason I bought it was so I would not be without a signal no matter where I travel. Let the XM provide the vital information to keep us travellers safe. There have been a lot of tornados this year already, I like to know where they are. XM provides that security and I am grateful to them. It appears to me that only the truckers have the XM anyway and why take that from us?
